LOVEFRESH HANDMADE BODY GOODIES

We never thought twice about what we put on our skin, until some grain of rice-sized person had us living on saltines and fast food burgers. Suddenly, natural ingredients became the brass ring of skincare. It took a few tries before we found something fresh-scented that we loved. (Read: That didn't make us stink like a forest.) After much research, Lovefresh Body Goodies has rapidly become our yummy new crush.

Stacey Davis and Kaija Pitt have used their brand of “kitchen chemistry” to create a line free of sodium laureth sulfate, parabens and petroleum. Showering with Lovefresh Pear Wash ($18) is so relaxing that we can almost ignore the screaming toddler hanging onto the shower curtain. Plus, the packaging is so attractive that we're using it as hand soap in the “good bathroom.”

The Pomegranate Scrub's ($24) delicious scent reminds us of cotton candy and we notice it mysteriously diminishing in our absence. (We suspect our partner has secretly taken to exfoliation.) And since we're sharing, we're slathering our freshest love with chamomile and lavender-infused Baby Massage and Bath Oil ($20).

And with all that good stuff on our skin, we can indulge in the occasional burger, guilt-free.
